PER CAPITA.

Much has been written of late on the subject of the amount of money in circulation, and it is contended that as a people we have more to the individual than eyer before in the history of the land. This we very much doubt, with good fortune. Our hope is that such may be true, and yet when we remember that "Lack never made a martyr strong, To suffer for the true and right; Lack never wrote a deathless song, Or armed a chieftain for the fight."
